SAINT LUCIA SET TO COMMAND WORLD STAGE FOR JAZZ 2011

Saint Lucia (April 11, 2011) – Saint Lucia is expected to once again command world attention when the historic 20th Edition of the renowned Saint Lucia Jazz sounds off in two weeks time. Main organizer the Saint Lucia Tourist Board (SLTB) is reveling in the keen interest being expressed by hundreds of potential patrons as exemplified by early tickets sales. Press coverage has also been extensive in the major markets and the 2011 lineup has come in for high praise.

SLTB officials say even with constant innovation, top rated performers and significant improvements in the event, they have aimed to keep ticket prices affordable. Director of Tourism Louis Lewis says, "This deliberate policy coupled with Early Bird Specials and other discount packages, have allowed as many patrons as possible to participate in the experience of Saint Lucia Jazz."

Louis says "as we move deeper into the final month, production activities, media engagements and other preparatory work for Saint Lucia Jazz are to reach a fever pitch." According to him, "the festival has received significant exposure in the international media and so we are anticipating a good turnout this year."
